Winter Week - End Slated For February 1st And 2nd

"Fritz," Viggiano, Mike Liccione, Dan Mulcahey, and Frank Lockett practice for the Senior Variety Show which will be presented February 21, 22, 23 in the auditorium.

Senior Show Swings Into Production; Rehearsals Throughout Term Holiday

Its show time at Le Moyné and with the call, "Curtain up!", about a month away, production of the Senior Variety Show is in the rehearsal stage. The second annual "Hi-Jinx and Lo-Grades" will be staged by the Class of '52 in the college auditorium on February 21st through the 24th.

Scripts for the production have been prepared by Josephine McManus, Ed Loftus, Don Musico and Mary Lou Sloan. It will offer ample opportunities for the varied talents of '52. The variety show will feature singing, dancing, and a generous dose of college humor in several unusual skits.

Ted Farina has been selected as stage manager; Gerry Tucker will lend his services as business manager. The production work is being handled by Bob Betterton, Paul Hanrahan, Ed Byrne, Carmella Mantaro, Tom Kane, Paul Gaffney, Bill Spinelli, Mary-Therese King, Maureen Gaynor and Mike Cunningham. The Seniors have scheduled rehearsals throughout the term holiday to insure a smooth, successful show.

Post-Game Festivities Sponsored By Alumni Ass'n

The Le Moyné Alumni Association is sponsoring an "Open House" after the College games for all alumni, Jesuits, members of the Board of Regents, Lay Faculty and the Administration and Maintenance Staffs. These parties, which are on a pay-as-you-go basis, take place at the Hotel

Onondaga and start soon after the game is completed.

On December 18, after the game with Sampson Air Base, the first of these affairs was held in the Hinawatha Room and was a great success. Over two hundred are expected to be present in the Lonis Room after the game

"Hi-Ho for Buffalo" Motto for Feb: 26

Plans for the Area Clubs Council's projected Buffalo trip have been completed and the promotional campaign, headed by genial Gene Vukelic, will swing into action as soon as the second semester begins. The main feature of the trip will be the Le Moyné-Canisius game which is to be played on February 26 in the Buffalo Memorial Auditorium as part of a double-header. Niagara will meet St. Bonaventure in the preliminary game. Incidentally, this is the first time that the four western New York Catholic colleges have played in such a double header. Arrangements have been made for student tickets, which will go on sale at a booth in front of the cafeteria during the week of February 4. At press time, the price of the tickets was unknown but assurances were given that the price would be reasonable.

Negotiations with the New York Central Railroad for a special student rate for the trip have been completed. Depending on the number of students who go to Buffalo by train, the price will be about $8.50 per person for the round trip. Since the following day, Ash Wednesday, February 27, is a school holiday, many of the Le Moyné itinerants might desire to spend the night in Buffalo before trekking back to Syracuse. So, the Western New York Club has made arrangements for student rates at the LaFayette Hotel.

Busy B Leads Hive-Drive

George Hunter, Chairman of the Mission Committee of the Sodality, has reported that the Advent mite-box drive was a complete success. The drive, conducted during a two-week period, was for the benefit of the Jesuit Missions in the Caroline-Marshall Islands. A total of $348 was collected and sent to the Most Rev. Thomas J. Feeney, S.J., director of these missions. Led by Paul Hanrahan, Senior B donated the largest amount from any individual section.

against Siena. That night, the Central New York Jesuit Alumni Association will be holding its regular meeting in the same room. In addition, Father Mark Kennedy, O.F.M., President of Stena College, and all in his group who attend the game, have also been invited to join the party.

Snow Carnival Planned At Tecumseh; K of C "Open House" After B.C. Game

February 1st and 2nd will mark the inauguration of another "first" at Le Moyné, the Winter Week-end. Plans for this two-day event, sponsored by the Student Council, are moving toward completion under a committee headed by James "Whitey" MacPherson, Senior I.R. To start the ball rolling, "week-enders" will attend the Le Moyné-Boston College game scheduled for Friday night at the War Memorial. After the contest, the festivities move to the Knights of Columbus Clubhouse on James Street, where an "open house" will be in progress.

Winter sports are the big thing for Saturday, when the Tecumseh

Country Club will be opened for skiing, ice-skating and tobogganing. Plans have been made to highlight the day by various sporting contests complete with prizes for the winners. A special feature will be the Flag Contest between the Freshman "boys" and the Sophomore "men," for the honor of the class. Refreshments, consisting of hot coffee and sandwiches will be served all day in the clubhouse. Later in the afternoon, students will be served a Smorgasbord dinner in the clubhouse.

Tickets for this Winter Week-End of fun, $5.00 per couple, or $3.00 per person, are on sale now.

Regents Meet; New Officers To Be Chosen

The annual meeting of the Le Moyné College Board of Regents will be held today in the office of the President.

This meeting is held to aid, assist, counsel, and advise in a special way the building, the formation, and the development of the college.

Reports of the committees and new business will be discussed. The new business will consist of discussion of the business program, election of new officers for 1952, and the appointment of the new committee chairmen.

The Board of Regents is composed of the Honorable Stephen W. Brennan, Messrs. W. Marcus Crahan, T. Frank Dolan, Edward Eagan, Clarence F. Gaines, Albert Haskell, Jr., Anthony A. Hensinger, Thomas E. Kennedy, George C. Kunz (President of the Alumni Association), Leonard P. Markert, the Honorable William E. McClusky, Messrs. Francis L. McElroy, Paul Nelligan, Edward A. O'Hara, and Vincent J. Smith.

The Honorary Chairman is Very Reverend William J. Schlaerth, S.J., President of the College. All members of the Board are Honorary members of the College Alumni Association.

THE DOLPHIN TIPS HIS HAT TO -

M. Cunningham

Very few people seem to know much about a very important Senior—Mike Cunningham.

Mike came to Le Moyné after receiving high school training at Eastwood High School and Christian Brothers Academy. At Le Moyné he is majoring in English.

Although Mike is rather reticent, he has many achievements of which he could boast. In his Sophomore year he was Sports Editor of THE DOLPHIN, and took over assistant managing editorship in his Junior year. This year he has reached the top as editor of the "BLACK ROBE." Mike is no slouch scholastically, either. He was appointed to Alpha Sigma Nu and is no stranger to the Dean's List.

All these accomplishments are marked by Mike's distinctive personality. Although he has done so much and will certainly do even more, he hasn't lost the "common" touch. His ready smile and quick sense of understanding are well

"Open To Leap Year Bids" Says Versatile Chem Prof

Intellectual eminence, liveliness, youth, sense of humor, musical ability—and ladies, he's not married! This potential conglomeration of human traits in one man is a virtually unknown fact to those unfortunate non-science students who have never thought to wander through a laboratory. For there is where Mr. Clifford McGinn, chemistry instructor, spends most of his time—in that "other building over there" mixing atoms and molecules.

Naturally enough, it was over a beaker of something or other that we discovered such interesting data. After extending to Mr. McGinn the customary greetings (how are things blowing up these days?) we were duly informed by him, who sounded as disappointed as we were, that rarely, if ever, do such things occur in a chemistry lab.

A native New Yorker, Mr. McGinn obtained a B.S. and an M.S. degree at Fordham University. Between the one degree and the other, he spent some time with "the biggest outfit in the country," where he reached the rank of Sergeant. At present, beside filling his first teaching assignment here at Le Moyne, he is working on a doctorate at Syracuse University.

Mr. Clifford McGinn, Le Moyne Chemistry instructor and half of the "Rock" piano duo, performs an experiment in the research chemistry laboratory.

Not only history, but mystery was unraveled in the third-floor lab. The truth was revealed that this versatile gentleman is the one responsible for the strains of classical music heard floating through the second floor of the Science building every week-day evening at approximately the same hour. An expert on Chopin, Mr. McGinn has taken piano lessons at irregular intervals since early childhood, even studying in France during his years in the service. Beside playing the piano, he frequently indulges in a game of tennis, at which sport he can "beat Mr. Davitt any day in the week."

Crazy about chemistry, he finds it "lots of fun" for him, and his actions and manner bear out the statement. Practically out the door, we were called back and gently reprimanded for forgetting to get the most vital information, his marital status. At this writing, the energetic Mr. McGinn is unmarried, and claims himself open to all bids. All applications, he insists, are to be filed with his personal agent, Mr. Czarniewicz. His candid blue eyes showed no trace of kidding, but his sense of humor was showing. However, we feel he deserves fair warning that he's playing with veritable fire. This is Leap Year.

Grace Before Meals New Sodality Goal; "Christ In Christmas" Drive Successful

The Sodality is currently trying to make the saying of grace before meals an established custom. It has been pointed out that this practice has not been followed by most students since the beginning of Le Moyne. It is felt that because many other Catholic colleges in the country have taken up this practice, and because it is only proper for man to ask God's blessing on his food, it would be a good idea for every student at Le Moyne to stand up and say grace before and after meals. The Sodality has asked all students to cooperate.

During the past Christmas season, through the efforts of many interested individuals and members of the Le Moyne College Sodality, approximately seventeen department stores and banks had crib scenes in their windows. However, the most significant result was that a Nativity scene was erected in Clinton Square. Mr. Otto Hitzberger was contracted to make the figures out of plywood. They were approximately five feet tall and set upon a platform supplied by the city. The scene was lighted at night to make it effective at all times. This was only the beginning of a campaign to put "Christ in Christmas," and it is hoped that next year will bring even greater success in this respect.

New Loyalty Fund Instituted; Alumni To Contribute Annually

To help the purpose of the Alumni Association, which is to give support to the college and assistance to the organization's individual members, the Board of Directors of the Le Moyne College Alumni Association plan to institute an Annual Loyalty Fund. This method of raising money will call for just one contribution a year from each graduate of the college. The amount to be given will depend entirely on the individual.

Alumni leaders have decided on the Loyalty Fund since it will eliminate the necessity of dues and of repeated drives for money throughout the year.

All financial needs of the Alumni Association will be taken care of by the Fund. Whatever money remains will go to the college.

Bob Gschwind, Freshman Social Science student, puts the finishing on this issue's Campus Personality drawing.

Artist Lends Skill To School Press

Neat and personable, good-looking Robert Gschwind of Freshman Social Studies B, has succeeded in building a reputation in the field of poster art. Bob is regarded as a quiet guy, but the quietness gradually gives way to a strange quality of eager friendliness as familiarity is developed.

Having spent much of his life in various cities—Chicago, Utica, Syracuse, (where he attended St. Anthony's), Bob settled in Rochester where he finished high school at Aquinas Institute. Art is his chief interest and hobby. Many evenings he spent at Rochester Institute of Technology where he applied himself vigorously to the study of sketching, lettering and lay-out work. His days were spent putting the skills learned during the evenings to use. Just to make certain that he had no idle time on his hands, Bob also became the American correspondent for the "London Sporting World" covering amateur prize-fighting.

Financially, he prospered, but Bob wanted more than skill and artistry at the easel and in the sports field. He realized the value of a well-rounded education and so he decided to come to Le Moyne.

When asked why he decided to attend this particular college, Bob thought for a moment and said, "I don't really know. Perhaps because I know Syracuse so well and I prefer a Catholic College if possible."

Although it was difficult to draw much information from him, Bob was willing to talk about his chief interest—art. Perhaps the best known of his creations is THE DOLPHIN'S Campus Personality sketch found in every issue. Many of the very professional posters which graced the college's bulletin boards for the Albany Trip, and other events, can be traced to his artistic talent. The '52 Black Robe has succeeded in enticing Bob into its lair in the Science Building by holding out as bait plenty of drawing pencils, ink, paint, and the promise of much art work to be done on this year's publication. In addition, Bob maintains a part-time job at Sturm Studios in downtown Syracuse, where he manages to continue his profitable interest.

As I See It

By Bob Betterton

Since I am one of those carefree characters who enjoys working in the delightful confusion of a cluttered desk, you can imagine my chagrin when I walked into THE DOLPHIN office and found two of my co-workers in the process of cleaning the joint up. Now these happy youths have heretofore been content to live and let live, occasionally losing things in the neat piles of debris on the floor, but never even suggesting that anything be done about the chaotic conditions which exist.

However, I was faced by two madmen, blithely throwing away precious, outdated, unpublished news stories, pieces of stale gum and unclaimed overshoes. I decided to ignore the entire project and seek sanctuary at my own messy desk. This I did, but the dastardly duo soon spied me, cringing behind a stack of old magazines, and demanded that I either straighten up my desk or hand in my key to the pencil sharpener and get out.

Now I can take a joke with the best of them, but such impertinence is one thing up with which I cannot put. These boys had to go. Needless to say, we had words. I had a few I couldn't use. I'm happy to relate that we soon came to an understanding. I began to clean the desk.

The top drawer held many things of a personal nature which I, sentimental slob that I am, have collected during my stay on the Heights. There, in casual disarray were: one of the few remaining locks of Spinelli's hair, an autograph picture of one of Macbeth's witches, a coaster from Wanda's, a slightly used picture of Governor Hughes, rejected term papers, a second hand frog from Biology lab, three empty bottles of No-Doze, a copy of last year's Logic final and a revolver with one cartridge left. I thought of throwing these things away, but they seemed so much a part of me that I couldn't bring myself to it. I fondled the revolver, then I muttered "You fool!" and slammed the drawer shut.

A very strange thing happened when I opened the next drawer. A beautiful blonde climbed out, threw her arms around my neck, gave me a resounding kiss, slapped my face and stamped out of the office. Oh, that Picardi was a foxy one!

The bottom drawer held my books, two old lunches, my good suit, a perfectly good set of crib notes, four copies of the Summa Theologica and two cans of soup. Naturally, none of that stuff could go; I need it.

The same thing was true of the other drawers. There is no telling when something might come in handy. I abandoned the idea of neatness and order and went to class. When I returned I found the trash basket full of my personal belongings, all the drawers in the desk locked save one, labeled "Editor," where the remainder of my stuff was stashed. The office is clean and neat, but you know what? I can't find a damn thing.

appreciated by those who have worked with him. Perhaps these qualities along with a relatively quiet personality have combined talent in his formula for success.

In view of Mike's accomplishments it is certain that Le Moyne will lose a very important student, and the world will gain an invaluable asset. In addition, Mike will be awarded a handsome Beiber-Isaac's Sports Coat.

Interracial Club Active, Wood Speaks On Racial Problems

Anna Hullar, president of the Interracial Club, has released for publication an agenda of the club's activities. One of the major projects of the club is volunteer work in the various interracial centers of the city. At present members are contributing their time to Dunbar Center and the Huntington Club. These workers act as supervisors to club groups, cooking classes, gym activities, and game rooms.

A series of talks has been planned by the club on various topics concerning the field of race relations. The speakers will include: The Rev. Charles Brady, director of the Bishop Foery Foundation; the Rev. Ferdinand N. Georges, O.P., director of the Blessed Martin Guild of New York City; Mr. Paul Weinandy, head of Huntington Club, and Mr. William Walsh of the New York State Commission Against Discrimination.

On Monday, January 14, at 2 p. m. in the Penthouse Lounge, Mr. Frank T. Wood, director of Dunbar Center, spoke to Club members and interested students on the problem of interracial relationships.

Officers of the Club are Anna Hullar, president; John Neary, vice-president; Jesse Moore, secretary; James Dougherty, treasurer; and Joanne Jordan, public relations. John F. Nash, Assistant Professor of Sociology, is the faculty advisor.

Father Lord To Lecture Under Guild Sponsorship

On March 6th, in Lincoln Auditorium, the Le Moyne College Guild will sponsor a lecture by the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S.J.

Well-known for the writing of such pamphlets as, "A Cure for Headline Jitters," "Christ Lives On," and "You Are So Important," Father Lord has been equally successful as an author of full-length books. The most recent, "His Passion Forever," was named the Catholic Book-of-the-Month.

In recognition of his work as Director of the Sodality of Our Lady for two decades and as a noted author and lecturer on the subject of Mary, Father Lord received the University of Dayton's Annual Mariunist Award for the year 1951.

In yet another field, this remarkable Jesuit's abilities show forth. The producer of the civic show, "Alma Mater," at the St. Louis University Centennial in 1920, Father Lord last summer wrote and produced Detroit's 250th anniversary show entitled, "City of Freedom."

Support The Winter Week-end

Elsewhere in this issue of THE DOLPHIN will be found a news article describing the events that will take place during the Winter Week-End sponsored by the Student Council on February 1st and 2nd. We know only too well the amount of time and work that Chairman James "Whitey" McPherson and his committee have spent to make this tradition-establishing event an auspicious occasion. We know also that this time has been sacrificed just before the semester examinations when hours can be spent in pursuit of knowledge. Our heartiest congratulations are extended to the committee for their selfless work in arranging this week-end.

A glance at the schedule of events should be enough to convince every Le Moyne student that a truly memorable occasion is at hand. Where else in this age of shrinking monetary value can such a week-end's entertainment be purchased for such a reasonable price? Three dollars for stags and five dollars for couples is a ridiculously low price, when one stops to consider the enjoyment to be derived from this week-end.

Here's where you come in. This Winter Week-End cannot be held unless at least two hundred people purchase tickets for it by next Tuesday. This project is a non-profit undertaking. The price that is charged is only enough to clear expenses. Show your interest. Purchase your ticket before you go home for the mid-term vacation.

The Red Cross Needs Your Blood

What makes February 15 this year different from any other day? Nothing except for the fact that the Red Cross Bloodmobile is coming once again to the Heights.

From the University of Idaho we learn that 38.8 per cent of their student body donated 1,014 pints of blood to the Red Cross and consequently to our soldiers in Korea. Already at Canisius sixty per cent of the freshman class have contributed 168 pints of blood. What about the other forty per cent? They were under the minimum age of eighteen and therefore barred from the contributing of blood. Last year here at Le Moyne only slightly more than one hundred or about 10 per cent of the entire student body responded to the request for blood. So at Canisius we find that the freshman class has contributed more blood both actually and by percentage than last year's student body of one thousand. Our record by comparison does not look very good!

"Why me?" you ask. Those of us who are veterans are only too cognizant of the importance of a pint of blood to a wounded soldier. Those of us who are not veterans, who have been deferred from the service because of physical reasons or by virtue of the fact that we are students, can and should come to the aid of those who are contributing so much—their lives—by at least taking time to give a pint of blood. What about it? Your rifle-carrying days may be closer than you think.

So let's sign up to give that pint of blood. Who knows, perhaps that pint of blood may be used to sustain the life of a friend, of a fellow Le Moyne student or maybe even yourself.

THE TROTTER POLL

By JOHN CONSIDINE

Late the other evening as THE DOLPHIN was going to press, we found, much to our chagrin, that we had five and one-half pages of copy for a six-page issue. So the question was asked of the staff members, "How do you suggest that we fill up the last half page of this issue?" Here are the replies:

I. Bill Hickey—"I've always wanted to continue my column to the next page, but I never got the opportunity. (Our circulation is low now).

II. Don Musico—"What else but the Trotter Poll?" (Congratulations! Stand by for the jackpot question.)

III. Harding Gordon—"Don't we have any feature stories left in the morgue?" (Actions follow nature.)

IV. Father Curry—"Put in an obituary for the editor that planned the issue." (Requiescat in pace.)

V. Bill Spinelli—"I told you you'd be sorry if you cut Tales From Spin-Alley." (But the end doesn't justify the means.)

VI. Anne Giordano—"Anything but Spinelli's column." (Lots of readers, eh Bill.)

VII. Bob Betterton—"When in doubt punt." (Ex-editor Betterton planned this issue.)

VIII. Terry King—"Something on the Chaumonot Forum, their debates could fill any page." (A little quality with the quantity please.)

IX. Jim Rinella—"I hope they remember this when they try to cut down sports for the next few issues." (You trained him well, Hickey.)

X. Sondra Donaldson—"Microfilm for Mister Munz's 336 Geometry theorems." (Mr. Munz knows them.)

XI. John Ferris—"Important telephone numbers." (Share and share alike.)

XII. Ed Loftus—"Bathing beauty contest." (Ab assuetis non fuit possio.)

XIII. Louise Zanzuchi—"I think they ought to print this column twice." (Time and a half for a double column.)

XIV. Rose Marie Stanton—"Try writing something." (Try!!)

Conan, McCarthy Grapple With Chairs; Profs Emerge Second Best In Tussle

Two of Le Moyne's most popular professors suffered injuries during the Christmas holidays. Mr. Eugene McCarthy and Mr. Edward Conan are not only trying to heal their broken bones but also they are attempting to hide red faces.

In his favorite chair in the living room Mr. McCarthy felt comfortable and secure, but little did he know what fate had in store. With a gentle nod, he and his foot went to sleep. For some strange reason he awoke and jumped up. This impetuous act brought on disastrous results; for the connoisseur of bow-ties found that his foot was broken. He now no longer believes in sleep and completely distrusts all types of chairs. To subdue all speculators about this story, it must be reported that the accident occurred early in the morning.

While gently touching his broken ribs, Mr. Conan related his decisive defeat by his beloved chair in the faculty room. He claims the cause of defeat was his customary position of tilting the chair backward while sitting. He hopes for a return bout in the near future and is confident of victory.

Professors Conan and McCarthy return from the Christmas recess nursing physical injuries and grudges against professorial chairs.

Since chairs have played an important part in their lives, these gentlemen will begin a study of them and will publish their results next year. This critical paper will analyze the entire problem of professorial chairs and their influence upon the academic life.

Dolphin Debaters Continue Active Speaking Schedule

While exams, term papers and ordinary school matters go on, the Chaumonot Forum carries its full schedule of debates and discussions. Recent achievement include a double victory over teams from Syracuse University on December 7, the afternoon of the Psych final. Topic for debate was the National Collegiate question for the year: Resolved; That the Federal Government Should Adopt a Permanent Program of Wage and Price Controls. The affirmative team from Le Moyne was composed of Gerard Tucker and Mary-Therese

King; Leonard Franklin and Ray Zimmer upheld the negative.

On the 8 and 14 of December, the junior varsity debaters journeyed to Colgate and Oswego, respectively, to engage in practice debate sessions. Experience in debate is the goal of these tournaments; decisions are not recorded. Cortland State Teachers' College lost a decision to Le Moyne on the afternoon of January 4, when a negative team composed of Ray Zimmer and the versatile Mr. Tucker effectively argued against Wage and Price Controls.

LE MOYNE SPORTS DOLPHIN

Dolphin Sportlights

By Bill Hickey

The lead item in this column last issue was a plea for the "Little Three" to be extended to the "Big Five," that is, including Le Moyne and Siena in addition to Niagara, Canisius and St. Bonaventure. Admittedly, the idea was a little controversial, but Ed Casey, Sports Editor of the "Bon-Venture," the St. Bonaventure newspaper, took a dim view of the whole idea. In fact, he devoted the better part of his column to refuting the entire plan. All that we had to say on the issue was stated previously, but we would like to clear up Mr. Casey on a few points.

First of all, the valiant sports editor was very kind in attributing the "Big Five" plan to this columnist. The fact remains, however, that the idea was not conceived here but in the sports column of the CATHOLIC SUN, a Syracuse diocesan publication. We would like to take credit for it but we can't.

Mr. Casey also contended that there would be no profit in the alliance we suggested, since the Dolphins cannot compete in the calibre competition St. Bonnies does. What he really meant was that there would be nothing in it for St. Bonaventure. Overlooking the individual, we mentioned that this type of union, extending the three-team league to five, would include a sizeable advance in prestige for the conference as a conference and for any single team. A great part of prestige depends upon how well-known a conference is. The proposed "Big Five" would blanket the entire Western and Central New York area from Buffalo to Albany. If St. Bonaventure is not particularly interested in the welfare of the conference, then we'll go along with their proposal to scrap the whole thing.

With thorough inconsistency, however, Mr. Casey comes out with a counter-proposal to form an Eastern Catholic Conference including all the major Catholic institutions in the eastern part of the United States. Now we'll be the first to concede that this would be the best plan, but, first things first you know. You can't jump from the beer to the champagne bracket over night. Start out slowly, expand to five teams, then eight, then ten and eventually there should be nothing to interfere with his conference becoming a reality. In the meantime, let's settle for the "Big Five."

In conclusion, the Olean oracle claims that the proposed conference would have to drag the Dolphins along with them for a few years before the Green and Gold could come into their own in the "big time basketball" circles. Again we'll have to go along with this as a fact, but his negative point of view is just a little too much. A primary purpose of the league would be to solidify the Catholic basketball forces in the Upper New York area. Even Mr. Casey will admit that this is a good selling point for such a league. It must be obvious that Le Moyne is included under the heading of Catholic Colleges, and that within very few seasons, the Dolphins will be able to compete with teams such as St. Bonaventure, judging from the tremendous progress the Green and Gold have made in the first five years.

We hope that this has helped to clarify the issue for Mr. Casey and his partners in view-point. We sincerely hope, with the above end always in mind, that the "Big Five" will materialize in the very near future.

High School Students Visit

Aquinas Institute is playing the preliminary to the Siena contest as they oppose the Dolphin Jayvees. Aquinas students have displayed such tremendous interest in the game, that they have ordered five hundred tickets for the contest. The Rochester Club has planned a tour of the College buildings for the visiting students.

Another High School, C.B.A., is going to turn out enmasse for the homecoming of their ex-star, Regis King, when the Manhattan Jaspers play the Green and Gold at the end of the month. The Brothers intend to outdo the Rochester school by including their band.

Unfortunately or not, as the case may be, this is the last time your columnist will have a chance to expose his views on sports in DOLPHIN print. Beginning the next issue, DOLPHIN SPORTLIGHTS will be under a new by-line.

There are a few little items we would like to leave our successor as souvenirs. To him we bequeath our old worn-out press releases, our long-standing verbal battle with the affable sports authority of the Siena News, Milt Benoit, our course in Logic for the Bon-Venture, and any unprinted galleys that happen to be lying around. Last but not least, we'd like to give him our small but efficient sports staff.

Siena Rematch Slated For Memorial; Nilandmen Prep To Avenge Albany Loss

Oswego State Downed; Jenkins, Leo Lead Team Back to Victory Column

On Saturday night, January 12, the Green and Gold notched their third win of the season as they trounced the Oswego Teachers by the wide margin of 79-56. Although the competition was rather poor, the Dolphins showed a little flash of their old-time teamwork at points during the contest. Jumping out to a 17-12 lead at the end of the first quarter, the varsity, sparked by the quick push shots of Fred Sheridan, moved to a commanding lead of 34-22 at the half-time mark.

From then on there was no contest as the Teachers just didn't have enough to cope with the Le Moyne forces. The Dolphins continued to sink almost every shot, and had a comfortable 23-point margin when all the scoring was in.

Shea Returns to Form

The bright spot of the evening was the much improved play of injury-riddled Dick Shea, the Dolphins' big center. Shea, who up to this time had not been able to move around with any facility in the pivot slot, was running on the fast breaks and slipping quickly in and out of the key-hole setting up plays from his center position. His board work was also improved as he took nearly every shot off the backboards.

Jenkins played his usual brilliant game but was equalled in scoring by "cool, calm, and collected" Patsy Leo. Leo netted in 17 points, Jenkins with seven field goals and three foul shots and Leo on six baskets and five feet throws. Le Moyne's double-figure scoring was rounded out by Jim Hand with 11 markers and Fred Sheridan who chalked up 10 points.

Squad Polishes Attack; Indians Rated Strong

On January 18, Coach Danny Cunha and his Siena Indians will make their first appearance in the new War Memorial Auditorium to face the Le Moyne College Dolphins. The Indians, one of the top ranking cage teams in the country, have enjoyed a highly successful season to date toppling Manhattan, Baldwin-Wallace, Colgate, Temple, Le Moyne and Canisius among others while bowing only to St. Peter's and Loyola of Baltimore.

The Dolphins were vanquished by the Siena quint, 62-41, in the season opener for both clubs in the Albany Armory last November 22, before 5,500 fans. Leading the Siena charge was Captain Billy Harrell, along with Glen Bissell and 6 ft. 8 in. Tom Pottenburgh. The return game should prove to be an interesting one. The Dolphins, who played bad basketball in the Albany encounter, are looking forward to the rematch in order to redeem themselves.

Rebounds and bad passing have been the determining factors in the Dolphins' slump but hard practice sessions and intra-squad scrimmages are correcting these difficulties and Coach Niland's charges are preparing for the Siena invasion with great anticipation. Working with a squad composed of co-captains Billy Jenkins and Jim Hand, Fred Sheridan, Patsy Leo and Freddy Byers or Dick Shea in the pivot, Niland is sacrificing height in order to groom a fast-breaking outfit. The spirit and hustle shown by the entire squad in the practice sessions is very encouraging and the Dolphins promise to be in the battle with the Indians all the way.

The preliminary contest pits the

Ryan with 13, and C.B.A.'s Charlie Sixcar with 12.

Combination Discovered

Judging from this contest, possibly Tom Niland has found the combination he has been searching for all season. Using Hand, Jenkins, Shea, Leo and Sheridan, the team played as a team for the first time this year. They displayed the self-confidence which they had been seriously lacking in all the previous contests.

Young and Leo Impressive After Half Season of Play

Jack Young and Patsy Leo, the two outstanding freshman basketballers who have earned starting berths in their first season of intercollegiate basketball.

By Jim Klnella

Two of the brightest Freshman prospects on this year's Varsity basketball squad are Patsy Leo, a Syracuse product, and John Young, who hails from Binghamton. During the first half of the season both boys have seen plenty of action and have occasionally been given starting roles by Coach Tommy Niland.

Leo Shows Promise

Leo did his High School playing at St. Lucy's and was nominated to an all-Parochial League berth. He led his team to second place finishes in both 1950 and 1951. Patsy, who is six feet tall, possesses a deadly set shot and is one of the chief play-makers of the team. His speed and hustle have helped the team tremendously in the early part of the season.

Leo, who has seen action in all 12 of the Dolphin games to date, has tossed 64 points through the hoop for an average of 5.33 points per game, which is tops among the Freshmen performers. His foul shooting average is slightly better than .500, having dropped in 14 out of 26.

Young, who comes from North High of Binghamton, is two inches taller than Leo. He has been used both in the pivot and on the outside and has an accurate set eye. John has proved his worth as a floor general and has done yeoman work under the boards both on offense and defense.

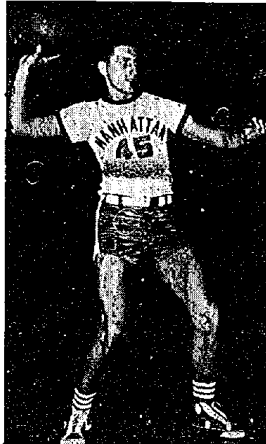

Having seen action in all but one of Le Moyne's games, Young has hooped 30 points for a 2.72 average. His coolness under fire was shown in the New York A. C. game, when he sank two foul shots in the closing seconds of the game to tie the score and send it into overtime. To gain experience, Young also plays for the Jayvee squad and owns an impressive 16.3 scoring average in the four games he has played.

Leo and Young are among the best Freshman eagers and will probably form the nucleus of the next edition of the varsity.

Varsity Returns Home After Two Road Losses At Hartwick, Cortland

The Le Moyne College Dolphins returned to the North High School court and the War Memorial Auditorium to begin a month-long home stand after dropping two contests in successive nights to the Cortland State Teachers and the Hartwick Warriors on the road.

In the Cortland contest, the Dolphins started strong with baskets by Jenkins, Hand, and Sheridan as the quarter ended with Le Moyne on top, 19-18. But a burst of scoring by Bob Reidel in the second stanza put the Teachers ahead at half-time, 39-34. After the intermission, Cortland jumped far ahead of the fading Dolphins and seven minutes passed before Billy Jenkins cashed in on the first Green and Gold basket of the second half. The third quarter ended with Le Moyne down by 17 points. A last period effort by the Dolphins could not catch the Teachers and Le Moyne was handed its ninth defeat of the season by a 72-61 count. Bill Jenkins was the game's individual high scorer with 19 points. Reidel, Armstrong, and Rollins led the Cortland point parade with 16, 14, and 12 markers, respectively. The game was played before a packed house at the Cortland gymnasium.

Hartwick Edges Varsity

The following night the Dolphins traveled to Oneonta to meet the highly-improved Warriors of Coach Tommy Greene. Frank Kommas and Ray Dobrzycki led their squad in a hard-fought battle which saw Le Moyne on the short end of a 59-56 score. In the first half Kommas netted half of his team's points as the Warriors led, 30-24. Third quarter baskets by Billy Jenkins and Dick Shea reduced the margin to a 43-39 count and the final stanza saw the Dolphins rally to within one point of the Hartwick eagers with Ben Clark scoring two quick baskets to insure the Warriors' victory. Bill Jenkins again led the scorers with 21 points. Kommas had 18 and Dobrzycki 14 for Hartwick.

'Guest In The House' New Play By Guild

Mr. Eugene E. McCarthy has announced that the forthcoming production of the Le Moyne College Guild Players will be "Guest in the House," by Hagar Wilde and Dale Eunson. Rehearsals for the play, which will run from the thirteenth to the fifteenth of February, will get under way on January fifteenth.

This three-act play, a great Broadway success of a few years back, is a psychological drama about an invalid young lady whose illness was all in her mind rather than in her body.

The cast will feature all of the Guild Players who have starred in past performances and will also include an ample sprinkling of new faces. At the time of publication, however, the cast had not been announced.

Intramural League

Basketball

With the holidays over and school activities being resumed for the New Year, the Intramural Basketball League begins action on three of the city courts. Games are being played Monday through Friday at Grant, Percy Hughes, and Madison Junior High.

A brief glance at the standings to date shows the Bullets, a Junior entry, and the Invalids, a Sophomore team, tied for the "A" Division lead with three wins and no defeats. In the "B" Division, the Eagles, a Senior squad, and the Apes have perfect records of 2-0 and 1-0, respectively.

Once again the Intramural Commission would like to ask the players for their cooperation in volunteering as referees. The Board would also like to stress the importance of promptness when the team is scheduled to play.

Bowling

After seven weeks of competition Team No. 6 is at the top of the Intramural Bowling League. Team No. 6 is composed of Bob Buehler, Jerry Segue, Jim Maraney, Gloria Pietrusko and Frances DeLongo. There are six teams in the league, bowling at the Recreation Alleys on Sunday afternoon.

The standings are figured on a point system, with one point being given for each game won. One point is also given for the high single game and one point for the high total of the day.
